It was a change that came to all and there was an inborn faith in all of us that death was not the end and that we would live again. He paid high tribute to deceased and his family, and said that in his years of acquaintance with him he had never heard Will Zemp say an unkind

BRITAIN'S SHARE

It ought not to be necessary to point out that in this war the people of the British Isles have done their share—and then some. But some folks have short memories—or big ears for Axis propaganda. Too many Americans believe that men from the Dominions or the Colonies have done most of the British fighting. This is one of the fallacies on which they base suspicions which hamper their own contribution to the United Nations war effort. For that reason the figures just released on British casualties may be useful.

They show that up to November more than 70 per cent of the casualties in British land forces came from England, Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland. If the sea and air forces were considered, the share of the United Kingdom would be much larger. For the men who have held the oceans and the skies against the Axis come chiefly from the British Isles. If civilians be counted—and who would say that the gallant Britons who dug out of the ruins of their homes and beat back fire and fear were not fighting?—then the percentage would mount again.

This is of course, no reflection on fighting men from the Dominions and Colonies. For who has not heard of the splendid exploits of the Aussies and New Zealanders? It may be that London has purposely publicized the deeds of men from the Dominions or that a dislike of boasting has played down the part of English, Welsh, Scots, and Irish from the home islands. Other factors too have affected our impressions. The Canadians, although making a magnificent contribution, have to their own disgust, missed most of the action, while the South Africans and Indians have operated chiefly in Ethiopia or Libya, out of news-camera range.

It is not the people of the Dominions or Colonies who carp. They know that the British Isles have furnished more than their share of men and money. It is Americans who seem to be so concerned about the outlying partners in the British Commonwealth. It is the kind of American who boasts of America's role as the arsenal of democracy and forgets that the United States' contribution is still largely in the appropriation stage, and forgets that even as a supplier of weapons Britain is still ahead. Britain has produced more than 90 per cent of the weapons she is using and meanwhile has helped her allies.

The British Isles with roughly one-third the population of the United States have spent about $40,000,000,000 on the war. Most of this is available now in war material, while despite vast appropriations, the United States has furnished so far only about $20,000,000,000 worth of fighting supplies. Britain has sent 1,000 tanks and 1,000 planes to Russia while America is lagging behind the amount promised. America is increasing the rate of her contribution rapidly, but the pace may be speeded by adequate appreciation of what others have done.

WEEKLY LETTER HOW MUCH MONEY ARE YOU THROWING AWAY

How many overweight or underweight hogs have you delivered to market this last year just because you didn't know their actual weight? Every time you sold a hog of this description you have been throwing money away. If you can afford to do that, then don't read the rest of this letter.

Hog Grading, including weight differentials has been developed in Canada over a period of some twenty years. It has arisen out of a concerted effort to provide the type of carcasses required for the British market, a market that we must have if hog production is to be maintained at a high level in Canada. The consumer sets the standards when there are several sources of supply from which he can choose what he prefers. Thus it has been necessary for we Canadians to fall in line and produce the type of product required.

In Canada we are familiar with graded products of great variety. Our grains, butter, cheese, eggs, apples and many other products are graded. In many of these products weight is a factor in determining the final grade and consequently the price received. The same is true of hogs and substantial discounts are in effect for hogs that are of improper weights for top grades.

Guessing the weight of live hogs is not satisfactory for only a superman could be accurate enough to be right each time. Every time the producer guesses incorrectly he loses money. Weighing the pigs regularly as they approach market weight is the only satisfactory method. Many people do not have scales suitable for this purpose. To overcome this difficulty the Dominion Department of Agriculture developed a scale that has been made available to hog producers at cost.

A goodly number of these scales has been distributed in Southern Alberta from the Experimental Station, but in relation to the number of hog raisers it may be assumed that only a small proportion are weighing their pigs before sale. It only takes the money lost on four or five off-weight hogs to pay for a scale, so figure out for yourself how many scales you have paid for without getting one. How much money are you throwing away?
